Dr. Margaret Grey, DrPH, RN, FAAN is the Annie W. Goodrich Professor and former Dean of the Yale School of Nursing. Prior to assuming the Deanship, she served as Associate Dean for Scholarly Affairs. She was the founding Director of the NIH-funded Center for Self and Family Management and a related pre and post-doctoral training program, as well as the School's doctoral program. A pediatric nurse practitioner, Dr. Grey's research has focused on improving the lives of youth with type 1 diabetes and preventing type 2 diabetes using innovative web-based programs. She has been instrumental in the development of practice-based research networks in nursing, and serves as Director of the T-III/Translational Research Core for the Yale Center for Clinical Investigation. She has been principal investigator for grants totaling over $25 million.
